Dina and Oxville

Favor Hospital Plan

The voters of Dina and Oxville districts were unanimously in favor of becoming part of the Livemaster Hospital District. At the poll taken on March 27 for that area comprised in those portions of township 46, ranges 1 and 2, and 3, situated north of the Battle River, there was a solid vote of 33 in favor, and none against.

L. B. Nicholson acted as returning officer, and P. K. Johnson and George Silk being deputies.

Successful Sale By

Veterans Auxiliary

The members and friends of the G.V.V.A. were glad to learn that the Sale of work and home cooking which was held on Saturday the 3rd was an unqualified success looking at it from all standpoints.

The sum realized was about $60. and all thanks are due to the tireless workers, the Auxiliary. Any man who could resist the selling power of Grandma D'Albertain should go and see a doctor.

We raffled also a ham and a cheese. The ham was the welcome donation of Parcels and Foxwell, and the lucky number 18 won the ham, and H. N. Freeman took the cheese with number 75.

The male section of the G.V.V.A. is indeed grateful to the Auxiliary for their timely assistance.

On Easter Monday morning a determined attempt was made to move the Club Rooms to the new home on the site so generously given by Mr. Herbert but after a day of hard work spent in jacking up the building when the horses were hitched on we found we could not move it; Better luck next time.

We are glad to welcome back Com. R. Noakes whom we believe has spent a prosperous winter in the land of money. B. C.

"Rosadore Pride of Glendale" a fine specimen of a black polled Angus bull, raised by C. R. Morton, of Vegreville, being purchased by Dr. Folkins. The bull is between 18 months and 2 years old, and cost $185.00.

"Scotch Heather" a Shorthorn bull, purchased by Selius Duff, of Dina at the cost of $150.00. This animal was purchased from Thos. H. Barton, of Laughted, and raised by Hon. Duncan Marshall.

"Rudolph Fairfax", was purchased from Edwin Johnson, of Malmö, at a cost of $300 by Thos. Kitching, of Artland.

Hay Located By

Agricultural Society

The announcement that 200 tons of hay could be ordered by wire, through the agency of the Chauvin Agricultural Society, from a place named Beryl, raised no little enthusiasm. It is absolutely necessary that no time be lost in communicating with the secretary P. H. Perry.

Local Notes Of Interest

Owing to the shortage of feed, the local lively barn has been compelled to notify his farmer patrons, that it is necessary for them to supply their own feed. It is, however, hoped that the situation will be relieved at an early date.

Mr. Kerr, of Edgerton, was a visitor to Chauvin, Monday.

Mr. J. King, now bank manager at Mundare, was a visitor to Chauvin, for the Easter vacation. He states that he has less snow than the Mundare district.

Mr. M. Parcels is paying a visit to his relatives in Chauvin. We trust he will decide to take up his residence in our midst.

The famous popular Clar-Ru Ladies Jazz Orchestra have included Chauvin for return engagements in their tour by Canada and will hold a big dance at the L.O.O.F. hall on Tuesday, April 13th. Further particulars in next issue of the Chauvin Chronicle.

The Chauvin V. P. S. held a very successful social evening last Thursday. About thirty being present. The program consisted of some games and a lunch. Everyone had a good time. The next meeting of the society will be held Wednesday, April 14th.

Mr. G. M. Beattie is enjoying the pleasures attendant upon being just moderately sick. Needless to say he takes his medicine regularly.

Chauvin needs no introduction to the Clar-Ru Ladies' Orchestra as those who had the fortune to hear them on their former visit will know the big NITE which will be in store for local dancers on April 15th. The Ladies' music and refinement is the keynote of their success. Supper will be served.

We miss the High School Breezes from our columns this week. The editorial staff not having recovered from their heavy meal of Hot Cross buns.

Shadowland Proved

A Pleasant Place

About 150 persons attended Shadow Land, arranged by the Women's Institute on Easter Monday in the L.O.O.F. Hall.

This entertainment was new to quite a number who attended and many were the questions asked concerning it.

Shadow Land was opened by the singing of "O Canada" and represented with the shadow of Maple leaves and the a very little young lady as Miss Canada.

Some dances were then called for the entertainment of the guests already arrived, and to give time for friends from the country to get in for the big event of the evening which was the sale by auction of all the ladies, who each took a character; comic pugilist, speaker, tylist, knitter, bathing girl, 1870, and not forgetting mother goose and the fortune teller who were amongst the characters represented.

Only the shadows of the ladies could be seen as they were put up for auction one by one behind a screen.

The bidding was good, most of the ladies bringing between $2 and $3, and some going as high as $4.50. Mr. Keatley was a capable auctioneer getting ready bidders who did not seem to mind what he bid so long as they got the shadow they wanted.

The sum of $93 was raised by the sale of the Shadows.

When all the ladies were sold the buyers were invited to claim their partners and a circle one step dance enjoyed by all. After a few more dances the supper was called after which a bountiful supper was served by members of the Women's Institute and greatly appreciated.

A few more dances brought to a close a most enjoyable entertainment. Many volunteered their service for the music, the supper was called after which a bountiful supper was served by members of the Women's Institute and greatly appreciated.

Shadow Land was a big success both socially and financially, and the Women's Institute are to be congratulated upon their organization and management.

Institute Meeting

Was Well Attended

The institute meeting of the Chauvin Agricultural Society, Tuesday, was well attended. Mr. H. E. Spencer being the speaker. It is our intention to publish his speech in our next issue, there being room in our columns this week to do justice to the subject of his address.

SOCIALISM

By JAMES COB

(Being a paper read at the Brady school to a meeting of the Mutual Improvement Society)

It appears to the speaker that he is in a very unpopular position when he attempts to advocate the cause of Socialism in Western Canada. In the whole of my excursions through this world of ours, going to and fro, there in, (that's just what the devil said to Job, say you) I have found no spot where there are fewer avowed socialists than in this Western Canada of ours. More than that socialism is looked upon with contempt, and a socialist as little less than a criminal instead of being a little less than the Angels. Now I cannot but think that this is largely due to ignorance of socialism and of course ignorance breeds prejudice. This is a big subject and I have had to prepare this paper without assistance from any books appertaining to be matter and have to rely on what little knowledge of my subject I have picked up in the course of a varied and chequered career.

In the first place then let us do away with the misconception so widely indulged in, that is that socialists want to bring all men down to their level. Socialism is not a pulling down but a lifting up. Socialists do not want to take away from any body the legitimate enjoyments of life that wealth is at present supposed to bring, but strives to put everybody into a position where they can expect and attain those same enjoyments. The first step then towards this desirable end is to give every human being from birth, equality of opportunity. Surely a very praiseworthy object his. You know very well that the child born in poverty and squalor with its resultant neglect has not the same chance of living and becoming a normal healthy man both in body and mind as the child born to riches and in clean and comfortable surroundings.

Socialists therefore want to give us all the same chance of a healthy body and of a cultivated mind. You know as well as I that school of the same name chance of education to fit us for the battle of life. That while some can go to school and afterwards through college and attain a knowledge in any subject that appeals to them and that starts them out on their career with all the chance of success that a good start and the pickings of the cleverest brains can give them, there's get little or no education and have to start life handicapped and even when they make a final success of life it is only after long years in that school of experience which is such a blow and bitter teacher, so that when at last they reap their reward they are past endurance and so long to gain.

But there is an equality we cannot hope to attain, and that—equality of mind and body. Some men are naturally and with every facility given them, stronger in body than others, keener in mind than others. This, of course, the socialists realize, but contend that with equality of opportunity men will naturally fall into positions of strength by force of nature. Some will be better fitted for them. Some will be better teachers, others doctors and others will enter the other professions where mind is of more importance than bodily strength. The real world engender in healthy occupations whose strength will naturally come. But, and this is a very big but, no one will have to work harder than is good for him. You know how the farmer has to work from early morn to deep eve, day and beyond that, and has sometimes to take the lantern to the barn

Farm Listings for 1920

should be in now, or not later than the third week in April, as is having advertising matter prepared now for the purpose of submitting new listings of improved farms to prospective buyers in GREAT BRITAIN who have decided to settle in ALBERTA. Mr G. M. Beattie will leave for Scotland about the end of April; and will carry with him all listings received up to that date, and will submit them to the farmers in the Old Land personally. Mr. Beattie will place these farms before people known to him, and will be able to describe each farm first hand. If you wish to dispose of your farm, bring in your listing now.

THE NEW LISTS ARE NOW IN OF C. P. R. AND H. B. LANDS on the usual terms. Call, write or phone, and we shall be glad to give you all particulars.

to do his chores, even in the summer-time. Does that seem to you a fair distribution of labour? Of course it does not when you come to consider that there are thousands of men living idle lives on the money their fathers left them. Now we have all been trained to believe that if a man has plenty of money he can live as he likes, that is he can work or remain idle just as he thinks fit. Think now for a moment, is this just? Because a man has been keen witted and prudent, is that a reason why his offspring are to go through life in sloth? Every man born or women has certain things which he should do whilst on this earth, certain duties to perform. Do not we all know this. Has not the first great socialist, the Carpenter of Nazareth told us this in no uncertain terms. There is useful work in this world for every one and cannot you see that if one man because he has money shirks that work another man has to do his own share and the idle man's share too.

Now as to the means towards the desirable end in view. The object is very hard to win. The socialist has to meet with ignorance and prejudice. With all the reluctance that men feel to get away from the established order of things. With the opposition of clever and learned men in many cases who will not see because of their money and vested interests, that socialists are working to make this world a better and pleasanter place to live in.

Do not for a moment believe that socialism is any new creed. Men have been thinking socialism for many, many years and things that used to be considered very socialistic and only wild cat schemes have actually become law.

You know that socialists say that everything belongs to the people and should be governed by the people for the people. That sounds like Abraham Lincoln, but I do not know. I do know it sounds like Socialism and a state of things we should very much like to see exist. Socialists advocate nationalization of land and nationalization of all public utilities. I have heard Canadians say how unjust it seems that landlords in the Old Country are allowed to own so much land so that other people can get hold of it only at a very high price, either to lease or to buy; but slowly and surely the estates are being broken up. What can we say of Canada. We find we are rushing headlong into the same position England is just getting out of. Here men are building up big estates. One man may acquire half a dozen sections and another may stick at only a quarter. Does that look as if you can crowd at all over England in this matter. Socialists say that the land belongs to the people and the people would let those who are the farmers cultivate the land for the production of all farm produce for the consumption and use of the people. But no farmer would have more land to cultivate or more work to do to cultivate or more work to do than he can easily and comfortably attend to. In return for his labor the people would give him the produce of their labor in the shape of all the useful things he requires in his life. Now it has been computed that if every man did his share of the world's work according to his ability no man than 4 hours each working day. So you see how nice and comfortable life generally would be for us all. That is just a bare bold outline of the way it would affect the farmer who would be in the enviable position of having one of the pleasantest and healthiest of occupations with ample time to enjoy his labor and the fruits of his labor. Now as to Public Utilities. This is where the people at home are ahead of America generally. All the Utilities used to belong to private individuals or companies and in America they do so belong to a great extent to this day. Now the socialists have dreamed that the people should own all means of transportation and the people thought that was their right. But today all or nearly all tramways or street cars as you call them are owned by the people and worked by the Municipalities at a profit that in many cases goes to keep down the taxes, while the fares they charge are negligible being only about 1 cent in some cases for a two mile journey. The people do not yet own the Railways. But when the war broke out the government took them over and now the war is over are very loth to give them back and it is likely that very soon arrangements will be made where by the people will own the railways. The water supplies used to belong to companies whereas now nearly all belong to the people, the same rule applies to gas for lighting and heating, to all electricity for lighting, heating, power, telegraphs, telephones. All these belong to the people and now the miners are asking for the nationalization of all coal.

And here we may mention the co-operative movement as we understand it. Everywhere throughout the Old Country there are now Co-operative stores within the reach of all people and the business that these stores do is reaching colossal dimensions. These stores tend towards socialism as much as they are run for the people's benefit and absolutely controlled by the people.

literature at my disposal to help with this paper, but after I had written it, I happened to be reading a book out of this Brady school library, a book that the children are supposed to read. It is called the Book of Knowledge. Here I find an article upon famous modern such names as Adam Smith, Rousseau, Stuart Mill, Ruskin and Bentham are included. At the conclusion I find the following paragraph about John Ruskin, who is well known in the Old Country. I will read it to you (page 4106).....Ah, you say, a very beautiful and enticing picture it is that socialists draw, but it is visionary and in the light of cold reason unobtainable. You have forgotten our poor human frailties, you have entirely left out of your calculations ordinary human nature.

Oh no! the socialist has not. We pray every day or ought to pray, 'Lead

Note.—Our new serial is a brief narrative and sketch of life in a battalion of one of Lord Kitchener's first armies.

The Experiences Of An American In Kitchener's Mob

We halted to wait for our trench guides at the village of Vernelles about three miles back of our lines. The men lay down thankfully in the mud and many were soon asleep despite the terrific noise. Our batteries, concealed in the ruins of houses were keeping up a steady fire and the German guns were replying almost as hotly. The weird flashes lit up the shattered walls with a fascinating, bizarre effect. By their light I saw men lying with their heads thrown back over their pack-sacks, their rifles laid bag across their bodies; others stand in attitudes of suspended animation. The noise was deafening. One was thrown entirely upon his own resources for comfort and companionship, for it was impossible to converse. While we were waiting for the order to move a homeless dog put his cold nose into my hand. Every muscle in his body was quivering. I wanted to console him in his own language. But I knew very little french, and I should have had to shout into his ear at the top of my voice to have made myself heard. When we marched I lost him. And I never saw him again.

There was a further march of two and a half miles over open country the scene of great battle. The ground was a maze of abandoned trenches and was pitted with shell holes. The hazards. We machine gunners are always heavily loaded. In addition to clay was so slippery and we were so heavily loaded that we fell down at every step. Some of the boys told me afterwards that I cursed like blue blazes all the way up. I was not conscious of this, but I can readily understand that it may have been true. At any rate, as a result of that march I lost what reputation I had for being temperate in the use of profanity.

We crossed what had been the first line of British trenches, which marked the starting point of the advance, and from there the ground was covered with the bodies of our comrades, men who had "done their bit." As Tommy says, and would never go home; some were huddled in pathetic little groups of two or three as they might have crept together for companionship before they died. Some were lying face downward just as they had fallen. Other attitudes revealed dreadful suffering. Many were hanging on the tangles of German barbed wire which the heaviest of bombardments never completely destroy. We saw them only by the light of distant trench rockets and stumbled on them and over them when the darkness returned.

It is an unpleasant experience, marching under fire, on the top of the ground while the enemy is firing hapthe usual infantryman's burden, we had our machine guns to carry, and our ammunition, water supply tools and instruments. We were very eager to get under cover but we had to go slowly. By the time we reached the trench we were nearly exhausted.

The men who we were to relieve were packed up ready to move out, when we arrived. We took their rifles and equipment on the parapet and stood close to the side of the trench to allow them to pass. They were cased with mud. Their faces, which I saw by the glow of matches or of lighted cigarettes were haggard and worn. A week's growth of beard gave them a wild and barbaric appearance. They talked eagerly. They were hysterically cheerful; voluble from sheer nervous reaction. They had the prospect of getting away for a little while from the sickening horrors; the sight of the dead, the deafening noise, the nauseating odor of decaying flesh. As they moved out there were the usual conversations which took place between incoming and outgoing troops.

"'Wot sort of a week you'd, mate? It ain't been a lucky week, son; it's been a tickin'."

"'Lucky for us you bilkes come in just w'en you did. We've about reached the limit."

"'Ow far we got to go for water?"

"'Bout two miles. Awful journey for you all night to do it. You got to stop every minute, there's so much traffic along that trench. Go down Stanley Road about five 'undred yards, turn off to yer left in Essex Alley, then yer first right. Brings you right out where the pump lies."

"'Ere's a straight tip! Send yer water fatigue down early in the morning; three o'clock at the latest. They's thousand's o'clock that well an' she goes dry arter a little while!"

"You bilkes want any souvenirs, all you got to do is to pick them up: 'elments, revolvers, rifles, and German diaries. You wite till mornin' You'll see plenty."

"'Is this the last line o' Fritz's trenches?"

"'Cant tell you, mate. All we know is, we got 'ere some'ow an' we been 'o-idin' on. My Gawd! It's been awful! They came down a bit to night. You bilkes is lucky comin' in just w'en you did."

"'I ain't got a pal left out o' my section. You'll see some of 'em. We ain't had time to bury 'em."

They were soon gone and we were left in ignorance of the situation. We knew only approximately the position of the living enemy and the dead spoke only to us in dumb show, telling us unspeakable things about the horrors of modern warfare.

Fortunately for us, the fire of the German batteries during our march in captured trenches, was directed chiefly against positioning to our right and left. The shells from our own batteries were exploding far in advance of our sector of trench, and we judged from this that we were holding what had been the enemy's last line, and that the British artillery were shelling the line along which they would dig themselves in anew. We felt more certain of this later in the night when working parties were sent from the battalion to a point twelve hundred yards in front of the trenches we were then holding. They were to dig a new line there, and to connect with entrenchments which had been pushed forward on either side of us.

At daybreak we learned that we were slightly to the left of Hill 70, a small village still in the possession of the Germans. As to our left front. Midway between Hill 70 and Hillach and immediately to the front of our position, there was a long stretch of open country which sloped gently forward for six or eight hundred yards, and then rose gradually towards the skyline. In the first assault the British troops had pushed on past the trenches we were holding and had advanced up to the opposite slope, nearly a mile further on. There they started to dig themselves in, but an unfortunate delay in getting forward had given the enemy time to collect a strong force of local reserves behind his second line, which was several hundred yards beyond. So heavy fire had been concentrated upon them that the British troops had been forced to retire to the line we were then occupying. They had met with heavy losses both in advancing and retreating, and the ground in front of us for nearly a mile was strewn with bodies. We did not learn all of this at once. We knew nothing of our exact position during the night, but as there appeared to be no enemy within striking distance of our immediate front, we stood on the firing benches vainly trying to get our bearings. About one o'clock, we witnessed the fascinating spectacle of a counter-attack at night. It came with dramatic suddenness, the striking spectacular display, of a motion picture battle. The pictorial effect seemed extravagantly overdrawn.

There was a sudden hurricane of rifle and machine gun fire, and in an instant all the desolate landscape was revealed under the light of innumerable trench rockets. We saw the enemy advancing in irregular lines to the attack. They were exposed to a pitiless infantry fire. I could follow the curve of our trenches on the left by almost solid sheets of flame issuing from the rifles of our comrades against whom the assault was launched. The artillery raged upon the advancing lines at once, and the air was filled with the roar of bursting shells and the melancholy whing-g-g of flying shrapnel.

I did not believe that any one could cross that fire-swept area alive, but before many moments we heard the staccato of bursting bombs and hand grenades which meant that some of the enemy at least, were within striking distance. There was a sharp crescendo of deafening sound, then, gradually, the firing ceased, and the word came down the line "Counter-attack against the — Guards; and jolly well beaten off too." Another was stammered before daybreak, and again the same sickening smell of lyddite, the same ghastly no-no-day effect, he same gradual silence, and the same result.

Boys Scout Movement Appeals For Funds

Chauvin, Alta March 26 1920
J. E. BAXTARR Esq.
Secretary Boy Scouts
Calgary

Dear Sir:

In reference too the Kavanis Club Campaign for the Boys Scout funds for Alberta. I would like to ask you whether you this fund when raised will be used locally (or otherwise) as our local organisation were figuring on plans of raising some funds by the same way to be used for our own local Scouts only. An early reply would be greatly appreciated.

I remain
Yours truly
A. E. KEITH.

April 1st 1920.

A. E. Keith, Esq.,
Chauvin, Alberta.

Dear Mr Keith:

With reference to your letter of the 29th inst. I beg to inform you that it is the intention to assist any Local Association or Troop to the fullest possible extent from funds collected through the efforts of the Kavanis Club.

You will understand, that it will take some considerable time to collect these funds and to get properly organized, but we may rest assured that we will do everything that we possibly can with funds and otherwise to help the Scout Movement in your district.

Re your letter enclosing subscription cards for Boy Scouts Association of Alberta.

Enquiries have been made of me by the Local Scout Association as to whether the funds raised will be used by the Alberta Association for distribution to the various Associations would the Chauvin Scouts benefit by same. If you could enlighten me at all in the above lines so I could inform the local secretary, I should be very much obliged.

To the Manager,
Union Bank of Canada.
Chauvin, Alberta.

Dear Sir:

With reference to your favor of the 29th inst. I would appreciate it if you will inform the Local Secretary of the Boy Scout Association that we, as a Kiwanis Club, are making an effort to create a fund of approximately $25.00 and mean to put the Boy Scout Movement, in the Province of Alberta, on its feet for all time to come. It is the intention to assist the local Associations throughout the Province to the fullest possible extent and establish new troops in Districts where the work has not yet been commenced.

You will understand, I trust, that it will take some little time to collect these funds and get properly organized. The Provincial Association has been in a deplorable financial condition and cannot make any move until funds are available.

You can rest assured that help you can give us will be very much appreciated and your District will not be overlooked once we are in funds and properly organized.

Yours faithfully

Farm Accounting 'And Income Tax

Farmer's Account Book Published by Commission of Conservation Demonstrates Its Usefulness

A Saskatchewan farmer writes to the Commission of Conservation "Received your Farmer's Account Book and I find it a very simple, handy book and I found it very useful in keeping track of everything on the farm. I entered it up about every week and do not see how a farmer can intelligently fill out his income tax returns without a book such as this." Many other farmers have written commending the book for this and other reasons.

The Commission of Conservation issued the Farmer's Account Book primarily to support better farming through encouraging better business methods on the part of the farmer. The Tax Branch takes no account of the book in favour of its use by all farmers, except such as have already a book.

It will not be out of place, therefore, to give a few hints regarding the manner in which the data noted in the account book should be used in filling out the income tax return.

The first and most important, thing to notice is that the farm accounts must be kept absolutely separate from the house-hold accounts. Farm expenses are allowed as deductions from income, but household expenses are not. For example, feed purchased for stock is a farm expense but provisions bought for the family insurance premiums paid on the barn, granary, etc., and depreciation and repairs on these buildings are charged to the farm, but similar expenses on the house are personal. Just as they would be in the case of a city man.

Secondly, it must be noted that, with one or two exceptions, the income tax branch takes no account of either receipts or expenses other than cash.

The exceptions are: Under Gross Income, the item "Value of Property consumed on Farm"; under Expenses Claimed as Deductions from Income, the items "Board of Farm Help" and depreciation", also "Rent

if paid wholly or partly in kind. Wages for members of the farmers' family are not allowed to be claimed as a deduction unless paid in cash. Increase in live stock is not required to be declared as part of income; neither is the loss of live stock through death permitted to be deducted. Hence, even if the farmer opens and closes his books on the first of January so that his business year corresponds with the calendar year (which is not at all necessary), the total farm receipts and expenses as shown on page 25 of the Account Book will not correspond with similar to be declared in the income tax return.

The differences, however, simplify rather than complicate the task of filling out the return, as it is not necessary to make an inventory. The cash then the latter had immediately track of on pages 1-18 of the Account Book and may be readily picked out and transferred to the income tax Branch. The only troublesome item is likely to be "Value of Products of Farm Consumed on Farm." This can best be filled up from the household accounts, if such are kept, as it includes all the butter, eggs, meat, milk, poultry, and vegetables, etc., raised on the farm and consumed in the house. In cases where such articles are traded at the store for other articles, transactions of this nature should be entered on the books as though the stockholder had paid the farmer in cash and then the latter had immediately spent the money in the same store. For example, if three pounds of butter is traded for a pair of gloves the value of the butter must be entered as a cash receipt and credited to the farm. The gloves, being an article of personal use, are not charged against the farm as a business expense. They should be entered in the farmer's own personal account, if he keeps one, but, so far as the farm is concerned, they are a receipt, a part of the farmer's income, and not an expense at all.

If a farmer bears these two simple rules in mind, namely: (1) Keep all business expenses separate from household and personal expenses. (2) Disregard, with exceptions above noted, all receipts or expenses other than cash, he cannot go astray in filling out his income tax return from the data supplied by his Farmer's Account book.

The Cause Of Failure

To be successful, farming must be made a business. Failures in farming are as often due to neglecting the business side as to any other cause. Farmers who neglect to keep exact records of their receipts and expenditures should ponder the following extract from the February "Teller", issued by the Sterling Bank.

"When asked recently by the National Association of Credit Men what in their opinion was the chief cause of business failures, 10,000 merchants replied almost to a man, 'Failure to keep books.' About the same time, 6,000 merchants taken at random from all parts of the country, showed that only 10 per cent kept records that told them! What they had in stock; what profit they were making; what their expenditures were for selling, advertising and other items of overhead; what particular part of their business was profitable or unprofitable.

Every farmer who does not keep books should make up his mind to begin. Send to the Commission of Conservation for a free copy of the 'Farmer's Account Book.'

The Demand For Land Will Be Very Keen

Those having farm lands to sell are advised to list them with T. H. Saul. We are on the eve of a period of immigration, thousands are coming over from the British Isles. To those who are coming over the first question is in which part of Canada may I be assured of find farm lands ready for me. Many of these new comers are experienced farmers, who are looking for established farms. If your list is ready for their inspection you are sure to find a buyer. List now with T. H. Saul, and your farm is as good as sold next fall to one of these Old Country farmers. Your farm will be placed before the attention of intending buyers by our representative, Mr. Beattie, before they leave for Canada.

HAVE YOU FILLED YOUR INCOME TAX PAPERS YET?

Your attention is drawn to the answering in of the income tax papers, non-compliance in this issue regarding there is a big penalty for failure to comply with the regulations

Economical Lye

An easy and economical way in which to get lye when one burns poplar wood is as follows: Empty all ashes or as many as you wish into a dish that will leak a little at the bottom. This should be set over a dish that does not leak. Into the ashes pour water, and again in a day to soak them so that it will slowly drip into the lower dish. Keep the ashes damp enough to drip and you will find an excellent lye in the lower dish. When the strength seems to be extracted empty the old ashes and refill. This lye will keep nursery bottles or any bottles crystal clear by putting a cupful into the bottle and shaking it well. The lye can be used many times if wished. This lye made by this method is good for all cleaning and washing purposes.

The Hare And
The Tortoise

A hare jerked at a tortoise for the slowness of his pace. But he laughed, and said that he would run against her and beat her any day she should name.

"Come on," said the hare; "you shall soon see what my feet are like."
So that it was agreed that they should start at once. The tortoise went off, jogging along without a moment's stopping, at his usual steady pace. The hare, treating the whole matter lightly, said she would first take a little nap, and that she would soon overtake the tortoise. Meanwhile, the tortoise plodded on, and the hare awoke, only to find that the tortoise had won.

"Slow and steady wins the race."

The Wolf In Lamb's Clothing

A wolf once dressed himself in a sheep's skin, and got shut up at night with some sheep.

Before any of the lambs were hurt, a shepherd came to the fold to get the fattest sheep in the flock. In touching them to see which was the best, he found an animal with hairy ears and a woolly back, it was the wolf lying down with the sheep to wait for an opportunity of carrying off his prey.

"This is a strange kind of sheep," the shepherd said, and putting a rope about its neck, he strung the animal high up on a tree.

"Are you hanging a harmless sheep?" asked a passer by.

"No," said the shepherd. "I am only killing a wolf in sheep's clothing."
"Do not pretend to be good, be really good."

Presentation At Oxville

Jim Suckling went to Oxville on the night of April 2nd to hear a speaker talk on conditions in England. He arrived there to find that this was merely camouflage and that a happy crowd had gathered to make him a presentation and hold a social evening in his honor. After a few dances, coffee was served. Following this Mr. E. Aalborg read an address assuring Mr. Suckling of the high esteem and respect that we all felt for him. It was with deep regret that we saw him about to leave us. However we all wished him health and happiness and success in his new undertaking. Mr. Aalborg then made the presentation on behalf of the crowd of a meershang pipe and fountain pen. Mr. Suckling in reply said that he was unable to express in words the gratitude he felt for them all but he would always remember them and that he too felt the same deep regret at leaving so many old friends behind. After everyone had insisted on lighting Mr. Suckling's pipe for him a program of songs and dances was gone through, then dancing again until morning, every body went home tired, but very happy.
